Ms. Bowden's First Graders are learning about noun's

Ms. Henry's 5th grade class is getting ready for the Map test.

Mr. Kelly's Second Grade Friends are hard at work.

A big "Shout Out" to all of our Senkow teachers and staff who are working so hard to help our students be successful in virtual learning!

I have had the privilege to work solely with first and second grade for the past 2 years. I have been spending time revisiting my second graders and getting to know our new Senkow first graders in their class cohorts. I can't tell you how proud I am of the way these students are handling this new and very different way of virtual learning. They are on time, excited and ready to participate and learn! None of this would be possible without the tireless work and dedication of our awesome teachers! They have made navigating this new way of learning exciting and fun! I also see how helpful our parents, siblings and other family members are. They are always willing to step in and help out if there's a problem. This whole new way of virtual learning is definitely a TEAM effort!! Thanks to all our students, parents, family members and the UNBELIEVABLY caring, hardworking teachers here at Senkow! We WILL get through this together!! Mrs. Yorgey

In mathematics, Miss Tabassum's class has been using arrays to model multiplication problems. We used the following tasty donut array to show  $3 \times 5 = 15$ !

Fifth grade is really starting off their last year at Senkow as a memorable one! I am so proud of how hard all the students are working in their virtual math classes. I can tell it's going to be a great year, no matter where we are learning/teaching!
