Over the past month, the students of Primos have researched prominent and influential African American individuals. Never discouraged and always problem solvers, Primos found a way to make the museum tour virtual!

Thank you, Mrs. WorriLOW, for organizing this immense school project.

Spring Vacation

March 29th – April 2nd

March was a good month for Mrs. Pawloski! Her PBIS team won another banner, and she got a sticker after her vaccine shot!

This 60th Anniversary work begs the question: What is your Green Eggs and Ham moment? What has changed your thinking, perception, or opinion?

Ms. H- Trying new foods is not my thing. I always thought Green Eggs and Ham was written just for me! When I try something new, I am reciting the poem in my head.

Mrs. Cheng - Green Eggs and Ham was actually the first book I learned to read by myself in kindergarten! I listened to it on cassette tape over and over again until I could read it on my own.

Mrs. Nunan- Watching our students continue to achieve success through this pandemic has made me a firm believer in being grateful for the little successes in your life. I realize that there is always something to be grateful for even on those days when you have to look hard for it:)

Mrs. Pawloski- I enjoy the silliness and laughter that his stories and illustrations show us. I also like how his books can interest the youngest to the oldest people. He touches on a variety of topics that are still pertinent today.

Mrs. Kruc: COVID-19 has forced me to make adjustments to my teaching style. I was resistant at first to make such extreme adaptations, but I have come around to see that there are things that I have learned from this. It has given me a whole new perspective to my teaching, and a great respect for students right now who have had to make many changes as well.

Mr. Casertano- Covid-19 has shown me even more how truly special our staff at Primos is. The time our staff puts in to support our students in this virtual setting is amazing to see.

Mrs. Ellis - This past year has shown me the strength and resilience that our students and staff exhibit every day. It's a different world and we are embarking on new and exciting challenges. Primos is ready for the challenge!

This week was Read Across America. I'm going to be telling you some facts about Dr. Suess. Dr Suess was born in 1904. He went to a public school in Springfield, Massachusetts. He also went to Oxford University. He married Hellen Palmer. He died 1991. I like Dr. Suess because his books rhyme and are funny. A fun fact he died in my birthday month- September 24th.

Alesa Um

Dr. Seuss was a famous children book writer. All the kids loved his books and rhymes. My favorite book is Green Eggs and Ham. He was beloved by children. He wrote over 48 books. Do you like his books?

The autistic support classes Celebrated Read Across America, too. They made their own Thing hats.

Rishwita and Umu

The Upper Darby Equity team created a virtual Black History Month Assembly. Each school was asked to prepare an inspiring quote or speech. And, our third grader, Umu Barrie, from room 120 represented our school. Umu had memorized her speech and just crushed it.

Rishwita Bhaviriseti, from room 111 was chosen as the winner of the International Mother Language Day Poster contest. She will receive a 2-year subscription to National Geographic Kids.

Ms. Dunn's second graders helped Mrs. Ellis fill the bird feeder!

Ms. Kagen's Class Plays Shark Numbers

Here is the link: Shark Numbers

Second Graders, Jacob Jones and James Clark, play a computer math game. They call it Sharks & Dolphins. We have a friendly competition between an in-person student and a virtual student against Ms. Kagen. If the students get the correct answer, they can choose a dolphin or a shark - the shark bites sink my boat - they chose to work together to sink my boat! Success!!
