Weekly Newsletter

Hello Parents,

The prevailing topics this week included The Pizza Museum and the midterm elections. We began the week by reading all about The Pizza Museum in Pasadena, California. This may have been everyone's favorite news article so far this year. The best part was the recipe page, which had us making English Muffin pizzas. The students kept asking why they were not in school on Tuesday, but the adults had to come in. Due to that, Mr. Walker's class joined us in completing mock elections and explaining the basic concepts of voting and our system of government. It was actually a lot of fun, although none of our predictions were correct! I want to end the week by reminding you that our fifth-graders will be going to the Philadelphia Museum of Art this Tuesday. If you have not done so yet, please complete the permission slip for your child to attend. I hope you all have a nice weekend.

Sincerely,
Jason Gonzalez
